

Dear participants of the SRISTI Summer School 2013,

Prof. Gupta would like you to share about your work on the SRISTI Summer School site www.sristi.org/nochildlabour. Therefore, we have created a blog where you can note down and share your daily experiences and reports including pictures etc.

Every team should have at least one student who knows how to operate a wordpress blog. If you face any problems, please contact Tadrash Shah at tadrashshah@yahoo.com and he will try to help you solve them.

Login

For login you have received an invitation via wordpress and authorship to the site has been granted to you.

Images

Fill in your text and media. Images/pictures should not be directly uploaded to the wordpress blog because it will fill up the wordpress space too quickly. Instead, add images to a flickr account that we have created for this purpose. From there, the picture URL can be taken to add the pictures to your blog entries. Access to the flickr account:

Go to www.flickr.com

Login via gmail (fablabmail@gmail.com), password fabulous13

To add pictures from flickr to your blog entry, click on

> Add Media

within the wordpress account.
After that click

> Insert from URL

and add the link.

Categories

After you have added text and images of your blog entry, you need to categorise your entry so it will appear on your individual Team Page. On the right side of the wordpress Posting page you will find a list of categories. Tick the box next to the team that you belong to.

Team 1 – Ragpicking

Team 2 – Construction site

Team 3 – Tea stalls

Team 4 – Paddy transplantation

Team 5 – Cobbler

Commenting

If people leave comments to your entry, they will show up in the blog's comment section. When moderating comments, try to remove spam. Other comments can be approved and responded to directly either with this wordpress identity or with your own externally created identity.

Every team should post a daily report. ! That means,we would like to see the report of your field visits by tomorrow as well as each team's summary of your impressions from the meeting with innovators at SRISTI office.

Best regards,

Marianne
